Harper's Bazar for 1892.

HARPER'S BAZAR is the leading Journal in America for women. With Volume Twenty-five it reaches its Quarter-Centennial, an established favorite in every intelligent household.

HARPER'S BAZAR, in its weekly issues, informs its readers of current fashions in New York, Paris and Berlin. Anticipating the changing seasons, it gives full directions and detailed information as to cut and fabric. Its artists in Paris and New York furnish lavish illustrations, and its Pattern-Sheet Supplement is indispensable alike to the professional modiste and to the woman who is her own dress-maker. The noteworthy designs made for HARPER'S BAZAR from WORTH models, by SANDOZ, are a feature which is unrivaled in style and artistic representation. In its department of New York fashions the most particular attention is given to the description of the reigning modes, and persons remote from the great shopping centres are enabled to order goods and arrange appropriate toilets for every occasion by following the lucid directions of its Fashion Editor.

The Serials for 1892 will be written by WALTER BESANT and WILLIAM BLACK. MARY E. WILKINS and others will furnish short stories.

GRACE L. FURNISS (author of A Box of Monkeys), KATHARINE LORING VAN COTT, and W. G. VAN TASSEL SUTTHEN will write plays and comedies for parlor performances.

Useful receipts in great variety, with all needed details as to service, will assist the housekeeper in preparing her breakfasts and dinners.

MRS. CANDACE WHEELER will contribute her unique and tasteful designs, in a series entitled "The Philosophy of In-door Decoration."

The last page has a national reputation as a compendium of wit and humor, enlisting among its illustrators McVICKAR, HYDE, STERNER, FROST, SMEDLEY, and other eminent artists.
